

CIRCLES

The moon is rising in the east
Waves roll in and your heart beats
Our eyes look towards the heavens
And we think about the future

Seems like so long ago
Your family reached these shores
Leaving behind so much history
And a country divided by war

(Still) Now we're asking the question again
Who to keep out and who to let in
Are we looking for someone to blame
Believing the lies and talking in circles again

The sun burns high in the northern sky
Another day left waiting
You thought you'd found your freedom
